

LUERSSEN AUSTRALIA APPOINTS NEW OPV PROJECT DIRECTOR

Luerssen Australia is pleased to announce it has appointed a new Project Director, David Miller, for the Arafura Class Offshore Patrol Vessel Program.

Prior to joining Luerssen Australia, David worked closely on a number of Defence projects, including the design and build of the ANZAC Class Frigates and the re-design of a commercial tanker into HMAS Sirius.

David has also been involved in the design, structural remediation and in-service support of many other vessel types in Australia.

Most recently, David has been consulting within the Defence sector and previously served as the Executive General Manager – Defence at Serco Asia Pacific.

Luerssen Australia Chief Executive Officer, Jens Nielsen, is delighted with the new appointment who will report to him.

“We are very pleased to have David on board with us at Luerssen Australia. He brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to the Program and we are looking forward to working together to deliver formidable vessels for the Royal Australian Navy,” said Mr Nielsen.

David Miller said he is excited to be joining the team,

“I am happy to join Luerssen Australia as the new Project Director, particularly with some key milestones coming up,” said Mr Miller.

“I look forward to working closely with the team as well as Defence to deliver a successful Program.”

Luerssen Australia is employing Australian workers, in Australian shipyards, using Australian steel to provide the Royal Australian Navy the vessels it needs in the future to fight and win.
